

Interior design for a house in the Moscow region

Category	Interior Designs	Authors
Location	Moscow region	Alexander Poroshkin
Square	350 m ²	Ilya Korenev
Year	2013	Ekaterina Zrazhevskaya

The house is located in the suburbs at Novorizhskoye highway, in the village of Borki. The bureau has provided the client with a complete design project: architecture, construction solutions, engineering schemes, landscaping and interior designs. During the work, all project stages were interconnected, which allowed us to optimize the process and get an excellent result.

The interior is made in a minimalist style, where calm monochrome colors prevail and much attention is paid to the functionality of furniture and decoration items. Architects took into account natural light through large windows and placed local lightning in those places where it was functionally necessary. The space is divided into a lobby — a living room where you can receive guests or spend time with relatives, a lounge and a private area — a bedroom for adults and a children's room.

